publican members of the Levy Court joined with the two Democratic members in voting down several appointments approved by the three remaining members, all Republicans. The new combination also voted to change the rules by enlarging several committees and in this manner captured a mejority on most of the important committees.

Thomas Lattomus, recently appointed a commissioner by Governor William D. Denney, and Commissioner Frank Jones, were the two botting Republican members. They refused to go into caucus with Commissioners Albert Stetser, Boyd McCoy and James Ball, and by switching their votes to the Democrats, Commissioners Albert Stetser, Boyd McCoy and James Ball, and by switching their votes to the Democrats, Commissioners Harry V. Buckson and Hariey J. Strahorn, flattened the caucus slate.

CONTROL OF COURT SHIFTED

The question centered about the appointment of supervisors in the three Democratic hundreds, New Castle, Red Lion and White Clay. The dissenters supported the Democrats in their contention that they should name supervisors of their party in these districts and then carried the revolt down the line of the committees, definitely shifting control of the affairs of the Levy Court to a bi-partisan combine.

The average was a proportion of the affairs of the Levy Court to a bi-partisan combine.

Why Suffer From Rheumatism?

Do you know that nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles or chronic rneumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's-Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to any one afflicted with rheumatism.

The work of entertaining and instructing the farmers who attend will structing the farmers who attend will be worked out by Dean McCue and an excellent program will be arranged for the occasion, the summer agriculture event of the year in Delaware.

It is expected that as in previous years the experimental work of the college, including farm crops, orchards, small fruits, live stock, etc., will be abeled in such a way that visitors may earn the work being conducted for their benefit and the results to date of such experimental work. It is thought that the farm crops, particularly corn and soy beans, will be in ideal shape to ow the results of various treatments of fertilizers, manure and the effect of erop rotations. It is expected that there will be a great deal of interest in the soy bean crop, inasmuch as there is a great number of these beans being raised by the farmers in all parts of the State this year.

An interesting feature of the affair will be the demonstration conducted by the men of the Rehabilitation Division. The 'boys' of this department take great interest in their agriculture work and many excellent plots have resulted

The snow was still falling quietly into the dark lake, and the squatter, with a throb at his heart, caught the thread of light at the edge of the window bilnd of his home. Then his Pollyop was still up.

"Cover your horses and wait here," directed Percival to the driver. Then to Hopkins he said: "As I told you, sir, your daughter's suffered frightfully. Poor girl, I am friad, if you appeared without warning, the shock would be too much for her. Do as we agreed in town, and go to Bishop's shack until I come for you. peared without warning, the shock would be too much for her. Do as we agreed in town, and go to Bishop's shack until I come for you. I'll tell her you and the boy are home."

A long sigh slipped from the squatter's lips. He desired to rush in and hold his girl-brat to his overwrought heart. He had heard with suppressed emotion Robert's tale of his Pollyop's trials, and now as he recollected them, he could scarcely restrain himself. Yet he realized the young man was right, so, pulling the child's bowed legs around his neck, he faded stolidly into the falling snow.

Inside the hut Polly Hopkins was seated, tensely silent, her slender fingers clasped togother about her knees. Suddenly she heard voices other than the low hum of MacKenzie's questions and Evelyn's sobbing answers in the coop-hole.

She arose slowly, ready to spring at Larry Bishop or Lye Braeger if they appeared at the door. To send them away instantly was the decision that she made as she saw the latch lift and the door slowly swing in. Afgure she recognized with startled eyes stepped across the threshold; she sat down, but was up again before he spoke.

The man she had so longed to see had come again. But now he was here, she did not dare let him stay a moment. Marcus MacKenzie might come out of the coop-hole even before she could send the newcomer away. While he was pressing his great coat collar down over his shoulders, she tiptoed to him and with uplifted hand whispered:

"Hush! Go away! Go away quick!" Making a backward gesture, she added: "There's some one in the coop-hole I don't want you to see."

His errand having completely left his mind, Robert, after a moment of startled inspection, stopped stiffly by the door. The resentment and jealousy he had nursed so long flared into active life and licked him like flames. Clothes such as she wore had never been pald for with squatter money! She was beautiful! So much his eyes told him, but he knew she was not honest!

She had said there was some one in the—

The sound of their voices brought Marcus MacKenzle out into the kitchen none stride. He halted at the sight of the squatter girl hanging desperately to Robert's arm. An exclamation broke from him; and with one wrench Percival was free and was at him. "So it's you!" he said in a tone that loid Polly Hopkins what was in his mind. "Damm you, you hypocrite—" His voice broke off, and he brushed his eyes across with shaking fingers. There behind Marcus in the coop-hoteloorway was his pale cousin. "Evelyn;" he gasped thickly. With the superstition of her kind, Polly was overcome by a great fear. Jerry was dying alone in a place of strangers! His little spirit had called strangers! His little spirit had called to her in the grief of its going! She cast a glance at the man and the woman. They were wholly enveloped in themselves and paid no attention to the plaintive wail that broke from her lips. She struggled to the door and opened it, and there—right before her startled eyes—was Daddy Hopkins, with Jerry astraddle his neck. "Daddy!" came in one bewildered cry from her shaking lips.

Then they faded from her vision, and the brown eyes yielded to semiconsciousness, and semi-consciousness was lost in complete oblivion.

When Polly Hopkins again lifted her lids, she was surrounded by a group of people whom at first she did to the series.

That was nice, indeed! she thought dimly. She must have dreamed that Old Marchad sent him to prison. Wee Jerry was cuddled at her side. Then he, too, had never gone away!

What brought full remembrance to her was the sight of Larry Bishop leaning against the wall at the foot of the bed. He was looking at her with tear-filled eyes, his cracked lips working painfully.

He stepped forward so that Polly saw him over Daddy's shoulder. She glared at him wildly, "Tell 'em—oh—tell 'em," she shuddered.

Zedekiah was made king of Judah by the king of Babylon (24:17), but in spite of this kindness and the word that Egypt could do was to cause temporary interruption of the siege of Jerusalem.

1. The Seige of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

1. Time of (vv. 1, 2). It began on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign and lasted about eighteen months. The tenth month according to the Jewish calendar corresponds to our December-January, as their calendar year began about the middle of March. The reason the exact, time is given is that this was to be an event of great importance to the Jews in their exite.

2. The Method (v. 1). Nebuchadnez-zar came in person with a large army and encamped against Jerusalem and built forts against it round about. It is thought that siege walls were built around the city, shutting it 'n. On the tops of these wails forts were built from which missiles of destruction could be hurled by their engines of war against the city. With the city shut in its fall was only a question of time.

3. The Famine (v. 3). Geikie says: "It was speedily followed, as is always the case, with an outbreak of pestilence. Food was well-nigh gone. There had long been no bread. Mothers were at last driven to murder and eat their children. The richest citizens wandering about "searching for scraps in the dunghills." Even outside the city the people were starving. FROCKS OF DARK TAFFETA; VARIETY IN HAT STYLES

A CTHOUGH the extensive and long-lived family of crepes still shows a disposition to crowd all other fabrics off the earth, in the roster of summer dress goods a few irrepressible favorites hold their own. Taffeta, organdie, gingham, and foulard are among those present in every representative collection. The first three, having textures entirely different from crepey weaves, provide for variety in the Jewels match the costume to a marked degree. The fad for wearing many bracelets continues, the bracelets of bone or carved ivory in white and colors. A stunning afternoon costume in dull tomato chiffon was seen recently, the rich tone of the tomato set off by bone bracelets 'dull red, green, orange and deep purple. Charming bracelets from France come in black, a delicate, almost transparent green and orange, with gay little elephants romping about their surface.

The elephants are painted in white on the black bracelets and in black on the colored ones. Other arm trinkets show cunning little ivory or metal figures of animals and men hung on slender gold or silver chains. For the woman who travels much, or happens to be in places where she can pick up these trinkets, it is interesting to gather odd little pieces here and there.

NEW FAN FOR THE EVENING

Without a stunning fan, an evening gown is as incomplete as would be a rainy day costume without an umbrella. Fans grow more and more gorgeous and the latest French wrinkle is a two-yard tulle scarf, attached to the outer stick of a big feather fan—at the right-hand side of the fan. Spread open, the huge fan is held in the right hand and the tulle scarf drops down over the skirt in a long loop which is caught up and twisted around the right arm. Or the tulle may be thrown around the shoulders and the fan held in the hand in some graceful position or other. It takes a little more practice to be able to manage fan plus tulle scarf effectively—but the result pays.

There is nothing in the line of food that will take the place of refreshing drinks to a parched throat. Often a given formula well liked by the one who passes it on lacks something that one's taste and that of her family needs to supply. Smart Handbags.

Some of the new capes have a veritable bolster for a collar. A wide, fat, roll of satin stuffed so that it will remain round and plump is actually becoming to long and slender necks. Other capes have upstanding roses of soft silk as collars. These flowers are so big and se closely set on the neckband that they form a ruche. Most of the new capes, as well as the new coats, have the high, standup collar. It is smart to have a handbag in some shade contrasting with your costume. A dark suit, for example, cries aloud for a scarlet taffeta handbag. A tan suit needs a bag of periwinkle blue. A jade frock or cloak is well set off by a bag of white. Often, the bag and hat match in shade. Sometimes bag, hat and stockings match, and this is the ultimate of smartness. SOUR CREAM AND MILK DISHES

Cutting Off the Last Word.

Archeologists have recently been puzzled over the finding of the headless body of an Egyptian princess in an ancient tomb. It seems that the question as to how the lady lost her head is important in archeologic circles.

In certain Oriental countries it is customary for the head of the house, in the event of a domestic argument, to behead the lady, thus cutting the lady as well as the argument short. Doubtless, the last words that issued from the lips of the headless princess were: "Where have you been?"—Judge.

SECRETS OF DAIRY SUCCESS

Two Big Things Are Proper Care a Feed, Says Specialist of Okla-homa College.

DAIRY COWS RETURN PROFIT

High-Producing Animals Are Usually Most Economical in Matter of Food Consumed

High-producing dairy cows are nearly always economical producers, says the United States Department of Agrithe United States Department of Agri-culture in replying to an inquirer who asked for a comparison of purebred and grade cows as to economy of pro-duction. If a herd of purebred cows has greater ability to produce milk and butter fat than a herd of grades, it will return more milk and butter fat for the feed consumed. As a rule pure-breds are bred for high production and just to the extent that they are

The ratio is not constant between the quantity of feed consumed and the quantity of milk produced. The records of cow-testing associations show that the cows that produced 10,000 pounds of milk a year ate only 55 per cent more feed than those that produced 5,000 pounds of milk a year. The cows that made 7,500 pounds of milk a year ate only 21 per cent more than those that made 5,000 pounds of milk a year ate only 21 per cent more than those that made 5,000 pounds of conditions.

MAKE TESTS ON BATES ROAD

sents That Many Kinds of Construction.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Final series of tests on one of the largest and most comprehensive road experiments ever attempted began March 27. This road, located at Bates, Illinois, was designed and constructed by the Illinois division of highways under the direction of Clifford Older, chief highway engineer, with the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture co-operating. It is two miles long and includes 63 different sections representing as many different methods and kinds of construction, having various thicknesses of concrete, cement grout and asphalt-filled brick as well as asphalt concretes and concrete with rolled stone bases.

The road will now be subjected to the final test, that of very heavy truck traffic, for the application of which will be used a fleet of 10 motor trucks received by the state from the surplus of the War department. At first these trucks will be lightly loaded, but as the test progresses the load will be increased until a maximum is reached, giving a 12,000-pound rear wheel load. The results will show definitely the types of pavements which can be expected to support heavy traffic, as well as those which will not satisfy the requirements of such traffic conditions as might be expected during the next 10 or 20 years.

The careful observation of the various sections in the absence of traffic which has formed the first part of the investigation, it is expected, will enable the engineers to ascertain the structural weaknesses which cause such failures as may take place in the traffic tests.

ROADS PAY DIVIDENDS

A wagon with a load of 3,000 pounds required an average draft of 108 pounds on a gravel road in dry condition, in a recent test at the Missouri College of Agriculture. The same load on a dry clay road required a draft of 321 pounds. This shows the great variation in the work done in hauling and in the size of load a team can handle, says J. C. Wooley, chairman of the agricultural engineering department, which conducted this test. The gravel roads prove their value even more completely under spring conditions. This load on the same roads after a heavy rain required a draft of 180 pounds on the clay. This is only one of the many advantages offered by all-the-year roads.

Unnecessary Practice.

Oiling a concrete road or any properly surfaced highway is not only a nuisance to the public, but is a lament able waste of a natural resource, says H. H. Franklin, who claims that the oiling system, a hold-over from the experimental days, is no longer necessary and should be abandoned.

Towers to Control Traffic. Towers, erected in the middle of streets and highways for the control of traffic, were first operated in Paris in 1910.

Of the vehicular traffic on the highways in California 97.3 per cent is motor propelled. Motor trucks constitute nearly 13 per cent of the total traffic.

A thirty-mile concrete highway in California known as the "Ridge Route," cost $1,500,000.

Miss De Muir—Papa has forbidden you to come to the house. He says you are a dangerous man.

"Dangerous. What can he mean?"

"He says you are the kind of a man who will hang round a girl all her life and never marry her."

Then he proposed. — Edinburgh Scotsman.
